And another convicted of his death. All because their children fell in love. Nate Beckett has spent his life fighting Ramsay and the scene of his latest survival is pulled from the icy harbor. She is identified as the mother of two-year-old Patricia Semplass, who was kidnapped on her way from kindergarten ten years earlier and never found. But Rams and Jamie join forces to investigate the unsolved case, unearthing information, the threat is raised, and it becomes clear Patricia's disappearance is not all that it seems.

Praise for the Rix & Ram series: ‘Everything about this crime novel sings, the relationship between Rams and Jamie, the mystery, the tension, the background, the plot, and the feel’. The Daily Telegraph

The final battle between Ramsay and the Semplass family is nigh. The past bleeds into the present and the clever melding of the strands of the story and the slow reveal of details leave you hungry for more. Get ready to be gripped.

Prize Judges Bernardine Evaristo is the winner of the 2019 Booker Prize and the first black woman to receive this highest literary honor in the English language. Gai, Woman, Other is a magnificent portrayal of the interactions of identity and a moving and hopeful story of an interconnected group of Black British women that paints a vibrant portrait of a sole of postcolonial Britain and its struggle for identity and the Caribbean. The twelve central characters of this multi-novel lead vastly different lives: Anna is a middle-aged black woman with a precarious job and a troubled family life; her friend Shirley is a young woman who works as a hairdresser and has dreams of becoming a writer; and their old friend Nova is a successful businesswoman who is struggling to maintain a meaningful relationship with her son. The book is a beautiful exploration of the complexity of black British identity and the challenges faced by women in the postcolonial world.

Pothead - Neal Pollack - 2020-06-16
A poignantly funny account of renowned writer and humorist Neal Pollack’s years as a marijuana addict. Beginning innocently enough in his 20s, Neal Pollack discovers that pot makes everything—food, music, sex—better. Getting married, having a kid, and enjoying professional success do nothing to dampen Pollack’s enthusiasm for getting high. As cannabis grows stronger and more widely available, the expansion and acceptance of marijuana Big Business shadows Pollack’s dependence. By 2014, Neal is a correspondent for a national marijuana newspaper, mostly because it means free pot. Diving into the wild, wicked world of weed with both lungs, Pollack proceeds to smoke, vape, and eat his way to oblivion, leading to public meltdowns and other embarrassing behavior. After his mother dies in 2017, he spirals out of control, finally hitting bottom during a reckless two-day gambling and drug-filled binge, culminating in a public crack-up at the World Series in Dodger Stadium. Three weeks later, he quits. After joining a twelve-step program, Neal outs himself as a marijuana addict in a 2018 New York Times op-ed piece, leading to his decision to document his experience as a cautionary tale for the millions of recreational users in the hazy age of legalized weed.
