English Language Education Across Greater China Anwei Feng 2011 This volume offers a comprehensive collection of co-edited and edited essays, addressing the development of English education in China through sociolinguistic studies of Mainland China, Singapore, Taiwan, and Hong Kong. The authors outline the historical development of English education in an economically booming area of Mainland China such as Shanghai and Guangdong and undereveloped regions like Xinjiang. The volume includes essays on the development of English education in China over the past century, focusing on specific issues such as the development of English education in higher education and the promotion of English language education in China. It also includes essays on the global context of English education, focusing on the impact of globalization and the Chinese government's efforts to promote English education. The volume concludes with a discussion of the future of English education in China and the challenges it faces.

A Tale of Two Tongues: Arabic and English in the Gulf States Andrew W. Conrad 1996-01-01 CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE SOCIOLOGY OF LANGUAGE brings to students, researchers and practitioners in all of the social and behavioral sciences a sound and practical foundation in sociolinguistics. It provides a synoptic view of sociolinguistic theory, methods, findings and applications. It approaches the study of language in society in its broadest sense, as a truly international and interdisciplinary field in which various approaches, theoretical and empirical, support and complement one another. The contributors are linguists, language teachers of all interests, sociologists, political scientists, anthropologists, historians etc. to the development of the sociology of language.
