The generation of the data lends itself to a great deal of manipulation along the three dimensions of time, space, and social organization. This makes it possible to choose the perspective most appropriate for the purpose of the analysis. The data is presented in a way that allows the reader to visualize the relationships among the variables being studied. The book is divided into five main sections: 1) the historical context, 2) the methodology, 3) the theoretical framework, 4) the empirical findings, and 5) the conclusions and implications. Each section is further divided into smaller chapters, each focusing on a specific aspect of nonverbal communication. The book concludes with a comprehensive bibliography, which includes over 1000 references to the research literature on nonverbal communication. The Index of Names and Topics includes over 10,000 entries, making it easy to find information on any aspect of nonverbal communication that is of interest to the reader.
