Paving the Way Contributions of Interactive Conflict Resolution to Peacemaking

This book presents the cumulative contributions of an interactive conflict resolution pioneer to a whole generation of students, practitioners, and policymakers. It offers a concise overview of the body of Kelman's work and his intellectual biography. It traces the origins of the field of conflict resolution and the conflicts that led to the creation of the field of conflict resolution. It also examines the selected texts offer a comprehensive description and clear rationale for interactive conflict resolution and its unique contributions to peacemaking.

Paving the Way for Habitat III - 2015

Paving the Way for Habitat III - 2015 From Identity-Based Conflict to Identity-Based Cooperation - Jay Rotblat - 2015-11-23 Through a comparative analysis of the peace and security dialogues in Cyprus and Tajikistan, this book provides a vivid reader on experiences of mediation throughout history and in many different regional, cultural and legal contexts. For experts in the field of mediation and legal anthropology it provides a series of fascinating case studies that are not published elsewhere.

Resolving Deep-Rooted Conflicts - Herbert C. Kelman - 2016-07-15 This edited volume presents the cumulative contributions of Professor Herbert C. Kelman, a leading figure in the conflict resolution community and one of the most influential peace researchers. Professor Kelman, a social psychologist, has been a pioneer of conflict resolution and peace research, and his work in conflict resolution has included a decades-long research program on the Arab-Israeli conflict which has seen the development of Interactive Problem-Solving Workshops, an approach which has had a deep impact not only on research, but also on the practice of conflict resolution. This book includes contributions from experts in the field of conflict resolution and provides a comprehensive overview of the body of Kelman's work and its intellectual biography. It traces the origins of the field of conflict resolution and the conflicts that led to the creation of the field of conflict resolution. It also examines the selected texts offer a comprehensive description and clear rationale for interactive conflict resolution and its unique contributions to peacemaking.

Across the Lines of Conflict - Michael Lund - 2015-12-23 Through a comparative analysis of the peace and security dialogues in Cyprus and Tajikistan, this book provides a vivid reader on experiences of mediation throughout history and in many different regional, cultural and legal contexts. For experts in the field of mediation and legal anthropology it provides a series of fascinating case studies that are not published elsewhere.

The Contribution of Joseph A. Schumpeter to Economics - Richard Arena - 2002-04-15 This book considers an examination of Schumpeter's legacy that is wider than any yet attempted. As one of the key economists of the twentieth century, Schumpeter's economic views is viewed in the context of its relation to the major Austrian theories of the free market, Keynesian macroeconomics, the early neoclassicism of Marshall and Walras, and a provocative argument made for its centrality to the discipline as a whole.

tracking interactive conflict resolution to peacemaking

We have the funds for you this proper as skillfully as easy artifice to get those all. We present paving the way contributions of interactive conflict resolution to peacemaking and numerous ebook collections from fictions to scientific research in many areas. among them is this paving the way contributions of interactive conflict resolution to peacemaking that can be read by you.
This collection of thirteen essays on social ethics and normative economics honouring Serge-Christophe Kolm’s seminal contributions to this field addresses the following questions: How should the public sector price its provision of public goods? What should be the role of values in a market economy, the early neoclassicists of Marshall and Walras, and a persuasive argument made for its centrality to the discipline as a whole.

Peace on Earth - Thomas Matjask - 2013-12-16
Peace on Earth: The Role of Religion in Peace and Conflict Studies provides a critical analysis of faith and religious institutions in contemporary peacebuilding processes. The book examines the synergistic relationships among faith traditions and practice in peacebuilding and the challenges that complex and plural societies face in the face of conflict. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

Interactive Peacemaking - Susan H. Allen - 2022-01-01
This book examines the theory and practice of interactive peacemaking, centering the role of people in making peace. The book presents three perspectives on interactive peacemaking: the humanistic perspective, the social psychology perspective, and the constructivist perspective. The book concludes that interactive peacemaking is a third way of understanding and addressing conflict. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

The Encyclopedia of Peace Psychology - Daniel J. Christie - 2011-12-12
This encyclopedia is a comprehensive reference work on peace psychology, covering the latest research and developments in peace psychology and conflict resolution. It includes nearly 300 entries written and edited by leading scholars in the field from psychology, sociology, anthropology, political science, and more. The Encyclopedia of Peace Psychology is an ALA 2013 Outstanding Reference Source.

Peace Movements Worldwide - Marc Pivcé - 2011-10-21
This book is a comprehensive overview of how the human yearning for peace has played out, and is playing out, on this planet. In general terms, optimism is the science of light. More specifically, optimism is a branch of physics that describes the behavior and properties of light, including visible, infrared, and ultraviolet?and the interaction of light with matter. Optics for Dummies gives you an approachable introduction to the science of optics, covering topics such as light, optics, and their applications, including optical effects; reflection, refraction, and diffraction; color dispersion; optical devices, industrial, medical, and military applications; as well as laser light fundamentals. It is a fascinating read for anyone interested in the science of light and its applications. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

Négociation et transformations du monde - Christophe Dupont - 2007-01-01
This book examines the theory and practice of interactive peacemaking, centering the role of people in making peace. The book presents three perspectives on interactive peacemaking: the humanistic perspective, the social psychology perspective, and the constructivist perspective. The book concludes that interactive peacemaking is a third way of understanding and addressing conflict. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

Peace on Earth - Thomas Matjask - 2013-12-16
Peace on Earth: The Role of Religion in Peace and Conflict Studies provides a critical analysis of faith and religious institutions in contemporary peacebuilding processes. The book examines the synergistic relationships among faith traditions and practice in peacebuilding and the challenges that complex and plural societies face in the face of conflict. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

Optics For Dummies - Galen C. Durev - Jr. - 2011-08-02
Optics for Dummies is an approachable introduction to the science of optics, covering topics such as light, optics, and their applications. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

Négociation et transformations du monde - Christophe Dupont - 2007-01-01
This book examines the theory and practice of interactive peacemaking, centering the role of people in making peace. The book presents three perspectives on interactive peacemaking: the humanistic perspective, the social psychology perspective, and the constructivist perspective. The book concludes that interactive peacemaking is a third way of understanding and addressing conflict. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

Peace on Earth - Thomas Matjask - 2013-12-16
Peace on Earth: The Role of Religion in Peace and Conflict Studies provides a critical analysis of faith and religious institutions in contemporary peacebuilding processes. The book examines the synergistic relationships among faith traditions and practice in peacebuilding and the challenges that complex and plural societies face in the face of conflict. By putting people at the center of the analysis, it outlines the possibilities of peacemaking by and for the people whose lives are being impacted by war and the challenges of building a world of peace and justice. This book will be of much interest to students and practitioners of peacebuilding, psychologists, conflict resolution, South Caucasus politics and International Relations.

Peacemaking: From Practice to Theory (2 volumes) - Susan Allen Nan - 2011-10-21
This collection of thirteen essays on social ethics and normative economics honouring Serge-Christophe Kolm’s seminal contributions to this field addresses the following questions: How should the public sector price its provision of public goods? What should be the role of values in a market economy, the early neoclassicists of Marshall and Walras, and a persuasive argument made for its centrality to the discipline as a whole.

Peacemaking: From Practice to Theory (2 volumes) - Susan Allen Nan - 2011-10-21
This collection of thirteen essays on social ethics and normative economics honouring Serge-Christophe Kolm’s seminal contributions to this field addresses the following questions: How should the public sector price its provision of public goods? What should be the role of values in a market economy, the early neoclassicists of Marshall and Walras, and a persuasive argument made for its centrality to the discipline as a whole.

Peacemaking: From Practice to Theory (2 volumes) - Susan Allen Nan - 2011-10-21
This collection of thirteen essays on social ethics and normative economics honouring Serge-Christophe Kolm’s seminal contributions to this field addresses the following questions: How should the public sector price its provision of public goods? What should be the role of values in a market economy, the early neoclassicists of Marshall and Walras, and a persuasive argument made for its centrality to the discipline as a whole.

Peacemaking: From Practice to Theory (2 volumes) - Susan Allen Nan - 2011-10-21
This collection of thirteen essays on social ethics and normative economics honouring Serge-Christophe Kolm’s seminal contributions to this field addresses the following questions: How should the public sector price its provision of public goods? What should be the role of values in a market economy, the early neoclassicists of Marshall and Walras, and a persuasive argument made for its centrality to the discipline as a whole.
Unlocking the Palestinian-Israeli Negotiations - Abraham Malahi - 2018-08-28

This book offers a critical review of contemporary literature on the Palestinian-Israeli negotiations. Its goal is to highlight the shortcomings of the methods that have been used to date to analyze the underlying causes that have led to a stalemate in the negotiation process. Further, it pursues an approach that considers the multiple factors that can influence the outcomes of the negotiation process. The book represents a substantial academic contribution to the field of international relations and provides a methodological analytical framework that is needed to analyze the Palestinian-Israeli negotiations, and bridging the gap between theory and practice. Accordingly, it offers a valuable asset for researchers and students interested in political theory. Middle Eastern studies, international relations, conflict resolution studies, political science, negotiation theory, and contemporary Arab studies and Israeli studies.

Building Peace Through Knowledge - Alain Al-Krenawi - 2017-04-18

This groundbreaking volume documents a comprehensive peacemaking initiative in addressing the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and its implications for regional and international policies. It offers the reader a comprehensive critical perspective on why peacemaking initiatives have failed and how each peacemaking effort should be understood in terms of its functions, the context in which it occurs, the underlying causes, and the outcomes that are likely to result from the implementation of peacemaking initiatives. The volume is divided into three parts: Part One presents the main theoretical arguments and concepts, including the nature of conflict, elements of individual and group identity, the long-term psychological effects of prolonged political hostilities, and the mechanisms of reconciliation and reintegration. Part Two includes a series of case studies that address specific peacemaking efforts, highlighting their successes and failures and identifying the challenges they face. Part Three provides insights into the role of knowledge in building sustainable peace and explores the potential of knowledge-based interventions in building sustainable peace in other regions. Practitioners, mental health professionals, and scholars with interests in multicultural mental health, cross-cultural psychology, political violence, and peacebuilding through knowledge as an ideology, a mission statement, and a road map toward a more stable world.

New Directions in Peacebuilding Evaluation - Tamra Pearson d'Estrée - 2017-11-11

In this volume, leading international experts in conflict and peacebuilding, including conflict resolution experts, present new evaluation approaches to be used in the field. The book provides a comprehensive framework for evaluating conflict resolution and peacebuilding initiatives, offering a range of tools and strategies for assessing the impact of these initiatives. The chapters cover a wide range of topics, including the challenges of evaluation in conflict and peacebuilding, the use of qualitative and quantitative methods, and the role of stakeholders in the evaluation process. This book is essential reading for practitioners, researchers, and policymakers involved in conflict resolution and peacebuilding initiatives around the world.

Handbook of Ethnic Conflict - Dan Landis - 2012-02-14

This handbook provides an introduction to the study of ethnic conflict and its causes, consequences, and solutions. It offers a comprehensive overview of the latest research in the field and provides a valuable resource for students, scholars, and practitioners. The handbook includes chapters on the role of ethnicity in international relations, the relationship between ethnic identity and conflict, the dynamics of ethnic conflict, and the role of external actors in conflict resolution. The book is an important contribution to the field of conflict resolution and a valuable resource for researchers and practitioners involved in conflict resolution and peacebuilding initiatives around the world.

Intergroup Conflicts and Their Resolution - Dan Baz-Tal - 2011-01-20

This book provides a framework that sheds an illuminating light into the psyche of people involved in macro-level destructive intergroup conflicts, involving societies and ethnic groups, that take place continuously in various parts of the world. It is designed to be an essential tool for understanding the dynamics of ethnic conflict, which plays a determinative role in its dynamics. Specifically, this repertoire influences the nature of social reality, affecting the way people think about themselves and others, the intergroup relationship and the conflict, the sense of solidarity and unity they experience, the conformity expected from society members, the pressure exerted on leaders, and the direction of action taken by the leadership. In addition, the book describes the changes in the socio-psychological repertoire that are necessary to ignite the peace process. Finally, it emphasizes the social psychology of minorities, ethnic minorities, and the role that education plays in promoting peace and understanding and constructively addressing violent and intractable conflicts. Central concepts covered include perceptual processes, basic human needs, group and normative processes, social identity, and intergroup trust, which form the basis for developing interactive methods of conflict resolution.
This book challenges the conventional understanding of South Africa’s transition to democracy as a home-grown process through a comparative analysis of Commonwealth and United Nations mediated conflicts. Approaching power transition through the lens of South Africa, Zwelethu Jolobe raises questions about how methods and types of mediation are understood, and their appropriateness for certain stages of negotiation processes. International Mediation in the South African Transition calls into question the generalisations about the determinants of success by international third parties in resolving internal conflicts. It moves from the position that the success of a mediation effort depends on the examination of the context of a conflict and the contribution of the mediation effort plays in improving the relationship between the bellhoppers. The book argues that the international community, particularly the Commonwealth and the United Nations, played a profound and beneficial role in the political transition to end apartheid. International Mediation in the South African Transition will be of interest to students and scholars of African politics, conflict resolution, international relations and global governance.

This book challenges the conventional understanding of South Africa’s transition to democracy as a home-grown process through a comparative analysis of Commonwealth and United Nations mediated conflicts. Approaching power transition through the lens of South Africa, Zwelethu Jolobe raises questions about how methods and types of mediation are understood, and their appropriateness for certain stages of negotiation processes. International Mediation in the South African Transition calls into question the generalisations about the determinants of success by international third parties in resolving internal conflicts. It moves from the position that the success of a mediation effort depends on the examination of the context of a conflict and the contribution of the mediation effort plays in improving the relationship between the bellhoppers. The book argues that the international community, particularly the Commonwealth and the United Nations, played a profound and beneficial role in the political transition to end apartheid. International Mediation in the South African Transition will be of interest to students and scholars of African politics, conflict resolution, international relations and global governance.

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution - Jacob Bercovitch - 2008-12-03

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution demonstrates the range of themes that constitute modern conflict resolution. It brings up key issues, methods and dilemmas through original contributions by leading scholars in a dynamic and expanding field of inquiry. This handbook is exactly what it sets out to be: an indispensable tool for teaching, research and practice in conflict resolution. The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution brings together all the conceptual, methodological and substantive elements of conflict resolution into one volume of over 35 specially commissioned chapters. The Handbook is designed to reflect where the field is today by drawing on the contributions of experts from different fields presenting, in a systematic way, the most recent research and practice. Jacob Bercovitch is Professor of International Relations, and Fellow of the Royal Society, at the University of Cambridge in Christ's Piece, New Zealand. Victor Kremenyuk is deputy director of the Institute for USA and Canada Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow. He is also a research associate at IASSA. I. William Zartman is Jacob Blaustein Professor of Conflict Resolution and International Organization at the Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of Johns Hopkins University.

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution - Jacob Bercovitch - 2008-12-03

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution demonstrates the range of themes that constitute modern conflict resolution. It brings up key issues, methods and dilemmas through original contributions by leading scholars in a dynamic and expanding field of inquiry. This handbook is exactly what it sets out to be: an indispensable tool for teaching, research and practice in conflict resolution. The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution brings together all the conceptual, methodological and substantive elements of conflict resolution into one volume of over 35 specially commissioned chapters. The Handbook is designed to reflect where the field is today by drawing on the contributions of experts from different fields presenting, in a systematic way, the most recent research and practice. Jacob Bercovitch is Professor of International Relations, and Fellow of the Royal Society, at the University of Cambridge in Christ's Piece, New Zealand. Victor Kremenyuk is deputy director of the Institute for USA and Canada Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow. He is also a research associate at IASSA. I. William Zartman is Jacob Blaustein Professor of Conflict Resolution and International Organization at the Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of Johns Hopkins University.

This book challenges the conventional understanding of South Africa’s transition to democracy as a home-grown process through a comparative analysis of Commonwealth and United Nations mediated conflicts. Approaching power transition through the lens of South Africa, Zwelethu Jolobe raises questions about how methods and types of mediation are understood, and their appropriateness for certain stages of negotiation processes. International Mediation in the South African Transition calls into question the generalisations about the determinants of success by international third parties in resolving internal conflicts. It moves from the position that the success of a mediation effort depends on the examination of the context of a conflict and the contribution of the mediation effort plays in improving the relationship between the bellhoppers. The book argues that the international community, particularly the Commonwealth and the United Nations, played a profound and beneficial role in the political transition to end apartheid. International Mediation in the South African Transition will be of interest to students and scholars of African politics, conflict resolution, international relations and global governance.

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution - Jacob Bercovitch - 2008-12-03

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution demonstrates the range of themes that constitute modern conflict resolution. It brings up key issues, methods and dilemmas through original contributions by leading scholars in a dynamic and expanding field of inquiry. This handbook is exactly what it sets out to be: an indispensable tool for teaching, research and practice in conflict resolution. The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution brings together all the conceptual, methodological and substantive elements of conflict resolution into one volume of over 35 specially commissioned chapters. The Handbook is designed to reflect where the field is today by drawing on the contributions of experts from different fields presenting, in a systematic way, the most recent research and practice. Jacob Bercovitch is Professor of International Relations, and Fellow of the Royal Society, at the University of Cambridge in Christ's Piece, New Zealand. Victor Kremenyuk is deputy director of the Institute for USA and Canada Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow. He is also a research associate at IASSA. I. William Zartman is Jacob Blaustein Professor of Conflict Resolution and International Organization at the Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of Johns Hopkins University.

This book challenges the conventional understanding of South Africa’s transition to democracy as a home-grown process through a comparative analysis of Commonwealth and United Nations mediated conflicts. Approaching power transition through the lens of South Africa, Zwelethu Jolobe raises questions about how methods and types of mediation are understood, and their appropriateness for certain stages of negotiation processes. International Mediation in the South African Transition calls into question the generalisations about the determinants of success by international third parties in resolving internal conflicts. It moves from the position that the success of a mediation effort depends on the examination of the context of a conflict and the contribution of the mediation effort plays in improving the relationship between the bellhoppers. The book argues that the international community, particularly the Commonwealth and the United Nations, played a profound and beneficial role in the political transition to end apartheid. International Mediation in the South African Transition will be of interest to students and scholars of African politics, conflict resolution, international relations and global governance.

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution - Jacob Bercovitch - 2008-12-03

The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution demonstrates the range of themes that constitute modern conflict resolution. It brings up key issues, methods and dilemmas through original contributions by leading scholars in a dynamic and expanding field of inquiry. This handbook is exactly what it sets out to be: an indispensable tool for teaching, research and practice in conflict resolution. The SAGE Handbook of Conflict Resolution brings together all the conceptual, methodological and substantive elements of conflict resolution into one volume of over 35 specially commissioned chapters. The Handbook is designed to reflect where the field is today by drawing on the contributions of experts from different fields presenting, in a systematic way, the most recent research and practice. Jacob Bercovitch is Professor of International Relations, and Fellow of the Royal Society, at the University of Cambridge in Christ's Piece, New Zealand. Victor Kremenyuk is deputy director of the Institute for USA and Canada Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow. He is also a research associate at IASSA. I. William Zartman is Jacob Blaustein Professor of Conflict Resolution and International Organization at the Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of Johns Hopkins University.